Gift for everyone By Hobbie I bought this for my husband as a Holiday Gift -- yes I start shopping in January so I am through by Halloween. He is a big Fresh Air and Terry Gross fan, so I know he will love it and will be surprised. I wanted to listen to it but couldn't bring myself to open it and try to put it back together. This is one of the gifts for the man who has everything!

Terry Gross brings out the best in the greatest minds on the planet—including the funny ones. Drawn from her long-running, award-winning public radio show, this new collection features in-depth interviews with the bright, shining wits of our time. One of the nation's leading interviewers, Gross is incisive, respectful, and always well-informed. She puts her guests at ease, which makes for rewarding listening. Insights abound and the humor is unstoppable.

From Publishers Weekly Starred . Delivering laughs, pointed critique on Hollywood, race, political correctness, and the indignities of old age, these conversations between NPR's Terri Gross and stars of comedy features unmissable interviews with heavyweights like George Carlin, Woody Allen, Joan Rivers, Steve Martin, and Sarah Silverman. Listeners will delight in learning just how Tina Fey channeled Sarah Palin (it has more to do with camera angles than you'd think), Trey Parker and Matt Stone's impish delight in riling up Tom Cruise, and Steven Colbert and Jon Stewart singing about the merits of Hanukkah. Other highlights include a rare out-of-character interview with Sacha Baron Cohen, Will Ferrell's awkward meeting with George W. Bush, and Aziz Ansari goading Gross into saying naughty words on air.
