Fred Botting : Gothic (The New Critical Idiom) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Gothic (The New Critical Idiom):

It's a good reference book for meBy Chair of Romance LiteratureNot quite what I was hoping for. I wanted a book I could assign in a class on The Gothic Imagination, as background to our poetry and novels. It turns out to be a slightly odd mix of introductory and analytic, which would be okay except that they're not separated in a useful way.

It's a good reference book for me, for preparing and reminding myself of issues to make sure I deal with, just not the book I was seeking. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Ms. G The go-to book if you are interested in Gothic Studies.

This enduringly popular book has become a classic in the expanding and increasingly popular field of Gothic Studies. This long awaited new edition contains a new chapter on Contemporary Gothic, an expanded section on American Gothic and more discussion of the gothic in womens film and writing throughout the book. It is also updated in relation to media and technology with further discussion of stage sensations and photography as well as engaging with all major texts and criticism since initial publication in 1995. With the added benefit of series features such as a glossary and annotated further reading section, this remains the ideal guide to the Gothic.

Praise for first edition: 'Elegant and streamlined, a miracle of compression.' - Gothic Studies 'An accessible and affordable book that will undoubtedly prove an indispensable addition to both Romantic and Victorian reading lists.' - TLS 'A welcome addition to new historicist theory.' - Essays in Criticism 'The returns on reading this book are enormous.' - In-between: Essays and Studies in Literary Criticism About the Author Fred Botting is Professor English Literature And Creative Writing at Kingston University, UK. He has written extensively on Gothic fictions, and on theory, film and cultural forms. His current research projects include work on fiction and film dealing with figures of horror - zombies in particular - and on spectrality, the uncanny and sexuality.
